You Must Start Right.

The idea in starting out in the business is to secure young and healthy ewes, to to always use a pure-bred buck. Then after you buy your sheep take good care of them. It is not necessary that they be pampered or coddled, but they should have the run of good pasture at all seasons, when practicable, and along during the cold winter season, and especially during the lambing season. A little good hay or corn fodder at night and also a little grain once during the day will keep Norfolk district must inevitably increase with an accelerating rate. It seems to me that the trade of the present is only a hint of what the future must be, for with an ever-widening market at home and abroad for the celebrated coals of the Virginias and Eastern Kentucky, and with the inevitable increase in trade which will come with the opening of the Panama Canal, I would not be at all surprised to see the coal trade of Norfolk increase during the next ten years more than it has during the last twentyfive.

Virginia's Industrial Ideas.

"While I am," said Mr. Gould, "largely interested in Texas and the Southwest, I regret that in that section there is still a strong opposition to the investment of outside capital. Virginia and the neighboring States have realized that all their natural resources will be without value until developed, and their development must come about largely through the investment of outside capital. In Texas, on the contrary, there is still some adverse-feeling, and it is more difficult to induce capital to invest in that State. But the sentiment in Texas against outside investment must necessarily change to more favorable conditions, and that State, with is wonderful natural resources for industrial development, as well as for agriculture, and its high type of citizenship, will, I am sure, in the not distant future become one of the mest attractive regions in America for the investment of outside energy and capiattractive regions in America for investment of outside energy and capital for the fullest and best develop-ment of its vast and varied resources."
